TESTIMONIALS

" My team of security managers attended Workplace Investigations & Interviewing Techniques training, the course content , delivery and competence of the trainer were simply par excellence, after the course, the managers felt more confident and quality of investigation improved significantly , a great value add. Highly recommended for those who may be required to conduct different types of investigations as part of their responsibilities. **"

Mahendra Yadav, CPP
GM Security, Cairn oil and Gas, Vedanta Limited

" Even though I possess 22 years of relevant security exposure, but the way the trainer developed and conceived this programme encompassing the entire spectrum of investigation complete and aligning it with interviewing techniques, I believe is rolling two spectrum in one programme. One thing is for sure, when you talk about work place investigations & interviewing techniques holds true for all sectors across corporate, I have immensely benefited from this programme and would recommend this to all security officers. **"

Manish Baldev Datta
Cluster Security Director, South East Asia, TEVA Pharmaceuticals

" I would like to thank Lancers for organizing this very good initiative, with excellent course content. These days organisations are facing lot of internal issues they have to deal with, this training course has equipped us to better handle such issues. For people like us who do field investigations, this training equipped us with these basic investigation & interviewing techniques provided me with a right start and I would highly recommend this course to other investigators in this field. **"

The Security Institute Courses

Perpetuity Training is the education development Partner for the Security Institute and the sole provider of its accredited online courses.

Security practitioners in management positions have long recognised the need for their abilities to be understood clearly by employers. This requirement has manifested itself in a huge variety of Associations, Guilds and Institutes where security practitioners signpost their 'professionalism'.

There has been an increase in the range and nature of academic and vocational security related qualifications. Inevitably the mix of qualifications, experience and industry affiliations has confused employers. It is difficult to compare a former senior Police Officer who has no commercial experience, a former Warrant Officer with ten years' as an in-house Security Manager and a graduate with 20 years' experience as a Regional Security Manager. Employers, and in particular, human resources departments need to be made aware of the values of and benefits inherent in employing qualified security staff. The Security Institute provides a framework that addresses the issue of professional validation for security professionals. The framework assesses security management experience, academic qualifications, vocational qualifications and contributions to the security profession. An independent professional board
